Poetical.

AS THE LEAVES OF MEMORY FALL.

BY JOHN R. ECK.

I.
My long-lost hours, how swiftly they've passed,
By the wayside of fleeting time;
And the joys of my young life have left me,
Like music's sweet echoing chime.
Repentance comes o'er my long-lost hours,
For follies I never would recall;
There comes to me grief of the erring past,
As the Leaves of Memory fall.

II.
I look far back into the olden time,
When my path was bright with flowers,
And all my old dreams come to me once more,
As the sunshine of gladsome hours.
But gone are the days I've trifled away,
And they rest like a sombre pall,
Over the heart's deep-stricken, sad remorse,
As the Leaves of Memory fall.

III.
Old age is throwing deep shadows around,
Youth's vigor I never can regain;
But there comes a voice of gladness and hope,
Saying, "Peace and joy with thee reign."
No more will I care for the world's cold wrongs,
But trust in the Giver of all;
Then my heart will dwell on Time's passing ways,
As the Leaves of Memory fall.

IV.
Old friends departed come to me again,
In memory, with accents low;
And my heart turns to the loved and gone,
In the days of the long-ago.
The lovely and fair, and the fond and true,
Sleep sweetly as the shadows fall,
And their evergreen homes I cherish dear,
As the Leaves of Memory fall.

V.
And hidden there, in that lone dwelling place,
Sleeps a loved one,—so sweet and fair,—
So pure in heart, and in love's tender tone,—
Her brow was ever light from care;
But her soul now rests in the spirit land,
Where the angels around her call;
And she comes to me with her spirit eyes,
As the Leaves of Memory fall.

Miscellaneous.

It would seem as though enough had already been said about the importance of saving all fertilizing material about the farm, and especially that from the poultry, which experience has abundantly shown to be worth as much as the artificial fertilizers that cost us three cents a pound and upward. Very few farmers would allow their wheat, corn, or oats to be scattered and wasted as much as their hen manure is, yet the latter is worth as much as the former, pound for pound. Poultry should always have a tight, well-lighted and warm apartment for their winter quarters and the roosts should be so arranged that the droppings can be saved, free from dirt and rubbish. The best way is to have a large tray under the roosts, made of boards. This should be cleaned out frequently and sprinkled with plaster or dry earth. The manure should be kept in boxes or barrels, perfectly dry, and will then lose none of its valuable properties. Neither lime nor ashes should ever be mixed with it, which is best done by adding about double the quantity of dry earth to the mixture, mixing it well with the shovel, moistening it moderately, and shoveling it over every three or four days until ready to use. It should be moistened sufficiently to allow of its being broken up and well mixed with the earth; but when so moistened it is apt to heat, and the shoveling over is necessary to prevent this and the consequent loss of valuable properties. A handful of this compost in a hill of corn will give it a powerful start. A barrel of hen manure so composted will often double the yield of an acre of wheat.

Forgiveness.

The mantle of charity ought to be thrown around the faults of our fellow-beings. "Thy sins be forgiven thee" should be the answer for us to give to those who have sinned against us and wish to be taken back to our bosoms and be as they once were, pure and sinless. Forgive and forget; memory will not let us forget, but it is in the power of exalted human benevolence. Saddening scenes will often press themselves upon our attention, even when we do the best to prevent them. So scenes of harmony between ourselves and our human relations will arise in the soul, notwithstanding the presence and influence of that principle of christian charity which should inspire every human soul with its divine effulgence. Yet memory, however faithful to her trust will not prevent us from being lenient towards the faults and follies of others and to forgive their departure from a true life.

LONG AND SHORT LIFE.—The man who lives abstemiously, who avoids all stimulants, takes light exercise, never overtasks himself, indulges in no exhausting passions, feeds his mind and heart on no exciting material, has no debilitating pleasure, lets nothing ruffle his temper, keeps his "accounts with God and man squared up," is sure, barring accidents, to spin out his life to the longest limit which it is possible to attain; while he who intensely feeds on high seasoned food, whether material or mental, fatigues his body or brain by hard labor, exposes himself to inflammatory disease, seeks continual excitement, gives loose rein to the passions, frets at every trouble, and enjoys little repose, is burning the candle at both ends, and is sure to shorten his days.

TREES ON BOUNDARY LINES.—The New York Court of Appeals not long since decided that a man has no right to the fruit growing upon branches of a tree over-hanging his land where the trunk of the tree stands wholly upon the land of his neighbor. But the law regards the overhanging branches as a nuisance, and they may be removed as such; or the owner of the land shaded may remove them if he is careful not to commit any wanton or unnecessary destruction in so doing. Where the trunk of a tree stands on a line, the owners of the adjoining land have a joint ownership in the tree and fruit, and neither one has the right to remove it without the consent of the others.

"Getting up in a cold room to make a fire is like getting up in life. If you crawl timidly out of bed, go on tip-toe to the stove, and allow the shivers to get control of you before the kindling starts, your fire will probably be a failure, and you will half freeze to death in the operation. But if you jump out bravely, bustle around, pull on your clothes, knock over a chair or two, and pitch in your stove-wood, you will probably be too warm by the time the fire gets to burning and have to open a window. So in life. Attack it timidly and you will fail. Grapple with it, hurry up things, stir around, conquer fortune, and you will be a success."

A WORD TO THE UNSUCCESSFUL.—Very few men are permitted to be successful; very few men are permitted to be wise; very few men are permitted to be eloquent; very few men are qualified to be statesmen; very few men are good for anything eminent; and even those that are eminent are men of like passions with everybody else. Therefore be not discouraged because it is your lot to be in humble circumstances—because you are called to labor in obscurity. The time is coming when all earthly distinctions will be of very little account.

CHASED BY WOLVES.

It is scarcely one year since the events which we relate occurred upon the northern steppes of Russia. An Englishman, named Hurbert, had accepted an invitation from a young nobleman to visit him at his frigid northern home, where he promised him among other inducements some excellent winter hunting, the game being bears and wolves. The Russian was of noble family, and enjoyed an immense estate covering thousand of acres among the wilds of the steppes. Within the spacious mansion all was luxury and comfort, but outside the long weary winters of the north were gloomy enough.

It was midwinter when the young Englishman joined his Russian friend at his home. The rigor of the season was extreme and for the first time in his life he realized what the word winter really signified. However, when there is an abundance of pecuniary means, comfort can be realized nearly anywhere, and young Hurbert was never more agreeably entertained than here in this frigid spot. Every modern luxury and means of amusement were at hand, and his friend, the Count Skarinski, was the best of companions, and a good billiard player, a capital shot with a pistol or rifle, and in short a highly accomplished man in all games and sports of the day.

On a clear, cold January day the two gentlemen made their preparations for a hunting excursion, and young Hurbert was somewhat surprised to observe the very elaborate arrangement which was entered into as it regarded the supply of arms and amunition. Considering that there were but three persons, himself and friend, and the driver of the sleigh, he thought that the number of double-barreled guns and revolvers, with the stuff to put into them was singular.

There were six double-barreled guns and as many revolvers, all loaded and laid handily in the bottom of the vehicle, besides each of the gentlemen carried a revolver in a leather case at his waist, and a long hunting knife. The driver also had a pair of pistols in his leather belt, as well as a hunting knife.

"We are a moving arsenal," remarked the Englishman, pleasantly, as he regarded these preparations.

"Yes; in hunting in Russia we sometimes come in such close quarters that there is little time for loading."

"Ah I did not think of that."

"It is the quick and sure hand only that is safe where wild animals sometimes come in large numbers."

"What will probably be our game today?"

"We will try for bears."

"Are they plenty?"

"It is not so easy to find them now as it will be in the spring They keep stowed away mostly all winter."

Two, large, handsome horses were harnessed to the sleigh, both so full of life and spirits as to require the whole attention of their experienced driver, who remarked that they would get some of the fire worked out of them before the close of the day. At the suggestion of the count, a third horse, or leader, making what is familiarly termed a spike team, was added to the sleigh, as he remarked that they might have a long pull of it. Thus equipped, with some luncheon in a basket, and well covered with furs to exclude the biting cold, the count and his English friend started off on the hunt.

They sought a somewhat famous locality in a well wooded neighborhood as the first point of search, but finding no signs of game here, they started for one still farther away, but with like want of success. Indeed, it became pretty clear that bears were not abroad, and that there was not much chance of their getting sight of any. In the meantime they had come a long distance, the day was already drawing to a close, and the count gave the word to turn the horses toward home. The party paused, however, to give the horses each four quarts of cracked corn, and also to partake of their own lunch. Half an hour sufficed for this, and, men and beasts refreshed, then commenced the homeward trip.

The sun had set, but the pale face of the moon was creeping up into the sky, and reflected from the shining surface of the snow, all was as light as day.

"We shall probably knock over a wolf or two as the evening comes on," said the count, "but I am sorry not to show you some larger game."

Scarcely had the words left his mouth when a noise behind them attracted the attention of both, and turning they saw a small pack of wolves, rendered desperate by hunger, pursuing the sleigh. They came nearer and nearer. As they were in so large a number—twenty or more—the count told the driver to keep up his speed, and he would pick off one at a time. They were soon within reach, and, lifting one of the guns, he fired each of the barrels, and two wolves dropped in their tracks.

Then followed the singular scene which is instinctive with these wild animals. As soon as one is wounded and rendered helpless, his companions fall upon him and devour his body at once. These creatures, crazed with hunger, tore the carcasses to pieces in an incredibly short time, fighting over the body to secure a mouthful, and were soon rushing after the sleigh with renewed ferocity, excited by the taste of blood. The young Englishman soon tried his hand and dropped three of the wolves at two shots, one having evidently gone entirely through the body of an animal and entered that of another before its impetus was lost.

The same scene was repeated which we have just described, but the pack had increased by the addition of another score of animals, which had been attracted by the smell or noise of those already in the field.

It began to look serious, and the count remarked that he had no idea the wolves were in such numbers this season.

They fired again, each time killing a wolf; but that retarded the pursuers but for a few moments—so many starving mouths devoured the wounded creatures instantaneously.

In the meantime the horses were kept at a steady and lively gait. It would not answer to use them up by a desperate dash of speed; for if they were to give out, the travelers would be torn to pieces in five minutes, as well as the horses themselves.

"Keep a steady hand, Ivan" said the count to the driver. "Don't fret the team but keep them well up to work. We have a long rout before us."

"Yes, count."

"Now, Mr. Hurbert, we shall give you a chance to show your marksmanship. Here comes another pack on our flank."

"Twice as large in numbers," said the Englishman.

"True. You blaze away at them when they get near enough—I see you are an excellent shot—and I will keep these fellows behind busy with each other's carcasses."

Care was taken to load the guns as fast as fired, for fear that the time might be near at hand when they could not spend time for that purpose. The wolves had not yet got near enough to use the revolvers upon them. More than a dozen wolves had been shot and devoured up to this time, serving to keep them back by the consequent delays each time that two of them fell by the unerring aim of the count and his companion.

The large pack that came down in a quartering direction were now quite near, and the Englishman aimed and fired. It was impossible to miss them, they were so close together, and two instantly dropped, rolled over, and stained the snow with their blood. The pack halted and tore them in pieces, while the sleigh kept on its steady course throwing them far behind, and they joined those immediately in the rear. The crowd of ravenous and ferocious creatures now numbered sixty or more, two or three fresh wolves joining them every few moments from different directions.

The count kept busy with his guns but said not a word. The expression upon his features, however, was one of considerable anxiety, and he was careful to re-load at every fire.

The wolves now spread themselves out, all the while on the run, in the shape of a half-moon or crescent, so that the two ends of the pack, now numbering a hundred at least, nearly came on a range with the sides of the sleigh, though some rods distant. The count and his companion kept busy, and at each fire of the double-barrel guns, a couple of wolves were sure to drop, when all the pursurers would stop for a few minutes to devour their comrades, and again commence the chase.

It was impossible in the partial darkness to tell where the additions to the mad creatures came from, but that the pack was rapidly increasing was very manifest, and in order to keep them from coming near enough to leap upon the sleigh and its occupants, and the two gentlemen were compelled to fire rapidly, and to distribute their shots all along the curving line of the pursuers.

"This is terrible," said the count at last. "Is there no end to their numbers?" as he reloaded his gun after killing a couple of the nearest.

"I suppose they would devour us instantly, if they reach us," said the Englishman.

"Undoubtedly!" replied the count.

"Ivan?"

"Yes, count."

"The horses are doing all they can?"

"Yes, count."

"Give me the reins. Jump out and cut loose the leader! Put a bullet through his brains and get back quick, man quick, I say!"

The intelligent driver did as he was bid. The horse died instantly. The driver was back in his seat and the sleigh was moving homeward again. The count now turned once more and emptied gun after gun into the crowd that stopped about the horse, while the Englishman reloaded.

"Good! another mile and we are safe," said the count.

But the horses could hardly move faster than a smart walk, now and then trotting a few rods. They were completely used up. The arms were once more all loaded, and one by one, then by twos, at last altogether, the wolves left the carcass of the horse. Ah! those precious moments in which they had been thus engaged had been the salvation of the party in the sleigh. The house was in sight. The horses made an extra effort at the cheering view before them. The count stood up and delivered a dozen shots one after another among the wolves, causing still further check to their progress, and the servants in the house, aroused by the noise, threw wide the gates, through which the horses crept and fell at once in the snow.

The gates were closed, and the well-armed household poured volley after volley among the ravenous creatures until there were none left to devour the wounded The horses were carefully rubbed and tended, and by-and-by judiciously fed, so that they were soon in a way to recover their expended energies. But how about the two men?

Immediately on entering the ground, behind the high walls of which they were safe, the count sent for brand

The Columbian

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, March 26, 1875.

Next Sunday is Easter—when Spring should begin.

Whenever you hear a Radical howling about the lack of legislation by the Democratic House, you can make up your mind that he had at least one job smashed.

President Grant tersely expresses the objections of the public as well as his own to the Buncome bounty bill when he says that it takes a large sum of money from the treasury when the public revenues cannot sustain such a draught; that the soldiers have not demanded the law in any considerable numbers, and that the chief beneficiaries would be the claim agents and middle men who would collect the bounty.

There is a great contest between the Reading Railroad Company and its employees, two thousand of the latter having been asked to dissolve their connection with the Workingmen's Benevolent Association, the alternative being a dismissal from the employment of the company. Instead of complying with the demand, the hands have been holding large and enthusiastic meetings, at which they resolved to stick to the Union, and abide the consequences.

Since it was ascertained that the Democrats elected two of the three Congressmen in New Hampshire and that the Democratic majority in the State on the Congressional vote is over 300, the Radical editors do not crow so much as formerly. The Radical candidate for Governor has a little over a hundred more votes than the Democratic candidate. The latter was said by the Radical papers to be very unpopular, which may account for the difference.

When the Quakers made laws for Pennsylvania they did not show favor to lawyers. Penn's first draft of laws, in 1682, provided that "in all courts all persons, of all persuasions, may freely appear in their own ways, and according to their own manner, and there personally plead their own causes themselves, and, if unable, by their friends." This was followed, in 1686, by a proposed law forbidding "mercenary pleadings in civil causes," and although it does not appear on the statute book, it is a sufficient evidence of the spirit of hostility to lawyers It did not take them long, however, to discover that whoever acted as his own lawyer "had a fool for his client," and they therefore shrewdly appointed agents or magistrates to attend to all legal business for communities or colonies. It is a little singular that the very seat of this hostility to lawyers, yet inhabited largely by Quakers, should become a sort of nursery for the most astute of lawyers, so that it became a saying that "it would take a Philadelphia lawer to decide that," in referring to business of extreme intricacy.

We have often said, and as often believed what we said, that the Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin was a spicy and entertaining daily, spirited and newsy, in these and other respects excelling many of the more pretensious dailies of the large cities, but its coarse and low bred assaults upon one of the councilmen of that city detract from its otherwise high character, and are a disgrace to it. "Calling names" is child's play—conduct that would render any man contemptible if indulged in conversation, and worse still when resorted to by respectable and honorable editors—is in fact a practice that would be discreditable even to vulgar old women. Papers, to be useful or worth reading, must command public respect, and we commend to the good sense of the Gazette & Bulletin gentlemen that whatever grievance they may have to complain of in reference to the gentlemen they so coarsely vituperate almost daily, that "calling names" is unmanly, disreputable to themselves, disgracing only their own paper, and utterly ineffective as against the councilman who is intended to be victimised. For the good name of all newspapordom, put a stop to it, especially for the credit of the Gazette & Bulletin. Put on the air brakes!

Some fellow in New York, under the names of Dr. Chas. T. Price and Dr. T. F. Burt, sent out advertisements to cure fits and consumption, in the same envelope. Coming in that suspicious way, and without anything favorable being known of him, a number of editors yet published the advertisements! They now complain of having been swindled. We say, they were served right. They placed a fraud before their readers, from a wholly unknown and irresponsible source, subjecting them to a swindle, and because the editors are not paid for their work and are themselves cheated instead of their readers, they cry "swindler." Of course, that is so of the New York chap, but how much better are the editors who did their level best to help him?

It is a shame to the profession, which works great injury to it and to honest advertisers, that there are publishers who will print any thing that is sent them as an advertisement, without knowing a thing about the responsibility of the party for whom the work is done. No other business men will do a dollar's worth of work or sell the smallest quantity of goods upon credit without knowing something of the person who asks the favor—only green publishers commit that foolish offence? Why is it? Are they less prudent than any body else on the face of the earth? We are always glad to see such fellows cheated—they may learn to behave in a creditable way in time! "Dr." Price alias Burt was very indignant because we would not insert without cash in advance. So are all other swindlers to whom the test is applied!

Temperance Legislation.

On the fourth page we print the new Liquor law at length. It repeals the Local Option law and that measure is among the things of the past. We regard the new legislation as much more in the interests of temperance than the repealed act, and its enforcement will be much easier. We regard the penalties as unreasonably high and much less likely to be enforced than more moderate ones. A simpler and more effective mode of reaching the end in view would have been to require all applicants for renewal of license to swear in open court that they had carefully complied with all the requirements of the law in regard to their traffic. The new legislation, however, is in the direction of regulating and restraining the sale of liquor and correcting the most flagrant abuses of the traffic, and so far will have a practical and salutary effect.

The charges for licenses must add very considerably to the revenues of the State None are to be less than $50 per annum, while others will be from $100 to $700. In this county probably none will be rated higher than $300, if so high.

Close of the Legislature.

The Legislature adjourned on the 18th. All the necessary legislation was completed, unless the bill to fix the salaries of the Judges under the new Constitution be an exception. That bill fell because of the strenuous effort to increase the salaries of all law Judges to $5,000 per annum. If there is not a formal combination on the part of all office-holders to increase their respective salaries to an amount far beyond what men may usually earn at honest occupations, and beyond what has ever been paid in this country before, those gentlemen at least are wonderfully unanimous in working for that end. But the thing is contagious, like many of the most repulsive diseases. The President had his salary increased from $25,000 to $50,000 per annum, (besides a superior amount for extras) and after the utmost anxiety to be elected at the smaller compensation—the Governor has his increased from $3,000 without house or light, fuel, &c. being furnished, to $10,000 with a furnished house and all its attendant expenses paid by the State, except for the table and servants, also after displaying the utmost anxiety to serve for the smaller sum—the members of the Legislature have their pay raised from $3 per day to $10, besides innumerable extras—so of heads of departments and every other conceivable species of office-holders. In the cases of the Judges the evil is a fearful one, for their number is already great and there is no limit to their increase. Besides, no matter how hard the times or what troubles overtake the people, these salaries when once fixed cannot be lowered. What adds to the burthensome and hence objectionable character of this increase of salary is the fact that so soon as it becomes permanently fixed, the Judgeships will be increased until every county in the State will have from one to three, and even up to a dozen or more in the large counties. But we do not propose here to discuss the salary question at length. Certain it is the people can never put a stop to this piece of extravagance until they require candidates for Governor to pledge themselves specifically to veto every proposition of increase.

The talk about non-payment of Judges because of Legislative non-action in fixing the exact amount is all perlabber. The Legislature has appropriated a half a million to the payment of judicial salaries for the current year. This will cover all whose salaries have heretofore been fixed. No authority can reduce the sum these Judges have been receiving. Of course, therefore, the State Treasurer will have no difficulty in paying them that amount. The Judges elected last November may be a partial exception, but the Treasurer would run no risk in paying them an amount equal to what was paid similar Judges.

The spectacle exhibited of whole gangs of lobbyists, borers and roosters filling the hotels of Harrisburg and the floors and lobbies of the Legislature, for the purpose of forcing the increase of salaries, is discreditable to the Judges concerned and all others, and cannot be too severely condemned. It is said that the disgust produced by this state of affairs induced many members to withhold their votes from the measure.

As to the various acts passed, we either notice them elsewhere or will hereafter publish them. We believe there are none of very special immediate interest except the license law, which we print this week, and there certainly are none which need affect the equanimity of people pursuing lawful callings.

Extra Session of the U. S. Senate.

After drumming all winter, and badgering caucuses after caucuses, the President has at length succeeded in inducing nearly all the Republican Senators to agree to pass a resolution endorsing his Louisiana conduct, and that subject is now keeping the Senate in session. That the resolution, even if passed, will have any force or effect, nobody pretends. It is only intended to allay the nervousness of one or two individuals arising from their own wrong action, and as a possible bar to impeachment. The people have passed their verdict at the elections in tones of such tremendous thunder that it can not be misunderstood or wiped out by Senatorial resolutions, especially when the latter are the result of Presidential whining, dictation and corruption. When Congress meets again the House will speak the people's voice, and before its judgment forced Senatorial resolutions will be but chaff. Gen. Grant has used the army in a despotic way to crush an unresisting people and make them the prey of thieves and swindlers. No Senatorial approbation can wipe out that indelible crime. It will be the business of the next House to see that it is not repeated even if it be driven to starving the army to prevent it from being used to outrage right. The days of Radical oppression by the use of the army are drawing to an end, as the voice of the people can be interposed with effect after the next Congress meets.

It is shrewdly suspected that the object of pressing the resolution at this time is to commit certain new Republican Senators who have been elected under doubtful circumstances, and to find out whether the administration really has a majority of friends in the Senate.

On the 22d ex-President Johnson made a powerful speech arraigning President Grant for his tyranical and unconstitutional action in Louisiana and Arkansas, exposing his inconsistencies and usurpations, condemning him for the reception of presents, &c., &c. The galleries were crowded and it was with difficulty that applause could be suppressed. The speech will make an unusual impression upon the country, and especially upon the South. It is not likely any of the Radical Senators will attempt a reply, at least at this session.

Mr. Wallace addressed the Senate on Tuesday afternoon in opposition to the resolution His speech was a compact and forcible legal argument against the President's action towards Louisiana and was listened to throughout with much attention by the Senators of both parties.

After the rejection of several amendments offered by the Democrats the resolution passed by yeas 33, nays 24 A number of Senators were absent, having paired off with each other. Had all been present the majority would have been the same. The resolution itself is an insipid affair and reads thus:

Resolved, That the action of the President in protecting the government in Louisiana, of which W. P. Kellogg is the executive, and the people of that State against domestic violence, and in enforcing the laws of the United States in that State is approved.

The Senate will no doubt adjourn immediately. The free trade treaty with the Sandwich Islands has been confirmed.

Up to the 18th of March 1874, the expeditious Radical House had passed six bills. On the 18th of March 1875, the Democratic House had finished up its business and adjourned. The Radical Legislature of 1874 continued in session until after the middle of May, and not a single Ringster went home d sappointed. This year all the Ringsters went home with empty pockets, and they howl accordingly.—Pittsburgh Post.

The Republicans don't want many more "victories" like that of New Hampshire. That was enough of the kind.

Radical Abuse of the late Legislature.

That the people are not as careful to send experienced and able men to the Legislature as they should be, we are free to admit. We are also free to admit that the election of two hundred members to the lower House was an absurdity, and that these, in view of the fact that the half of them were necessarily and a majority of the remaining half accidentally new members, were not as well trained as a foot company in the regular army, is also probably true. But that there is a decent excuse for the abuse that the Radical editors are heaping upon the House as a body is not true. There were blackguards there—notably the Philadelphians, mostly Radicals—and some Radical members who ought to have had more regard for their character did all they could to render the House odious. But the fact stands out clearly and above cavil that the body was comparatively honest in its legislation. The economical appropriations, the firm stand against the demands of the State Treasurer and his corrupt ring, the few laws that were passed, and the total absence of any of a corrupt or ring character, are ample testimony to the purity of motive that governed at least a majority of the late House. There stands the incontrovertible evidence, attack it who can! That evidence defies the malevolence of the traducer and is a full answer to every slanderer.

Compare it with the Radical Legislatures that preceded it. Every one of the latter was distinguished for the amount of corrupt public and private legislation it enacted, for being governed by base rings of plunderers, for the enormity of their taxation, for their extravagant expenditure of the people's money, and for their outrages upon the public and private rights. No such legislation stains the record of the House just adjourned, and there is no omitted proper legislation for which the Radical Senate is not responsible

Such are the facts. It is therefore vain for Radical editors to attempt by abuse to bring the late House down to a level with its Radical predecessors, which were distinguished only for their baseness and corruption.

A Third Presidential Term.

We have always regarded the third term cry as a transparent humbug, not deeming it possible that any great man could so deceive himself as to suppose that his personal popularity could over-ride the almost if not altogether sacred unwritten law of the country established by Washington and approved and strengthened by all his patriotic successors who lived out a second term, that no President should be more than once re-elected, nor have we been at all disposed to so far deny patriotism to Gen. Grant as to believe that he desired a third term. Recent events, however, seem to point unmistakably to a third term programme. Prominent amongst these and of most pointed character is the fact that whenever any prominent Republican, or Republican organization, declares for Mr. Speaker Blaine as the next Republican candidate for President, the personal organ of Gen. Grant at Washington at once proceeds to abuse such persons and to threaten them with the vengeance of the administration.

For the country's sake we would rather that no man who in a high degree has enjoyed its confidence would attempt to break down the time-honored two term rule, especially at a time when so large a proportion of the people are ready to give their voice in favor of making all Presidents ineligible to even a second term, but for the interests of the Democratic party we could hope for no better fortune than for the Republican leaders to force Gen. Grant upon the people for a third term. It is by no means probable that even one State in the Union could be carried for him. Even cold-blooded Maine and the negro States of Florida and Mississippi would rebel against that.

For the credit of the nation and himself, let Gen. Grant decline. To render Democratic success certain beyond the possibility of doubt or accident, let the Republican party nominate Gen. Grant for a third term.

Another Louisiana Settlement

Representatives of the opposing elements of discord in Louisiana having agreed that the Congressional committee of investigation should settle all matters at variance, this latter authority undertook the job, with the assent of the Federal administration The committee is composed of two Democrats and five Republicans. As a basis it was agreed that Kellogg should continue as Governor to the end of the term, without reference to the validity of his election, and the committee was to take up the returns and decide who were elected to the Legislature in disputed cases; that body then to meet and organise. In pursuance of this agreement the committee, after examining the returns, decided that the five members expelled by Sheridan were duly elected, as well as six other Democrats They then stopped at that, lest further proceeding would seat so many Democrats as to give them a majority on joint ballot, and a U. S. Senator in case Pinchback should be finally rejected. The people of the State seem willing to submit to any thing that will give them peace and quiet, and protection to their property and business pursuits.

Appropriation Bill.

The following are the amounts appropriated by the Legislature for the objects specified in the general appropriation bill, viz:

Salaries State officers, clerks and employees, and incidental expenses executive department	$ 175,000
Support common schools	1,000,000
Printing and binding	50,000
Legislative record (about)	25,000

Pennsylvania institute for the blind	30,000
Pensions and gratuities	50,000
Board of public charities	7,700
Serving writs of election	116

There never was a time when the Ring howled more loudly about the doings of the Legislature than this year. Not a single Ring measure was allowed the slightest chance in the House. Let the people put this and that together.—Pittsburgh Post.

The Sinking Fund.

We honor the Democratic House for standing firmly by the Sinking Fund and refusing to permit a dollar to be abstracted from the legitimate purpose of paying the State debt. If the fund is too large and is therefore paying the debt too rapidly, let the people be relieved by removing a portion of taxation from them and thus reducing their burthens. To continue to tax the people and waste the fund upon other purposes, affords no relief to any body. Therefore, if the money is to be raised, pay the debt with it—if it is not desirable to do that as fast as is being done then do not collect so much. Nothing tends more to the corruption of governments than to have a large available surplus in their treasuries. Reduce the taxes.

Imbecility of the Radical Party.

The want of capacity in the Radical party to administer the affairs of this country is day by day manifested. In every direction one sees the ignorance, corruption, and weakness of this party in its management of the great interests intrusted to its care.

Stealings, frauds, infamies, outrages, violations of the Constitution, are as frequent as the blind hate of the Radical party deems necessary to force the people into submission to power in opposition to the right.

As to statesmanship it is wholly unknown in the Radical party. The negro, force bills, hate bills, election frauds, stealings, corruption and imbecility mark the Radical party as the oppressor of the people. Compare the financial history of France and her last great war and that of the United States under Radical rule:

Five years ago France, under the condition of her treaty with Germany, promised to pay five milliards, or $1,000,000,000, to the latter as the condition of peace. The whole of this vast transaction was carried out between 1st June, 1871, and 5th September, 1873 (twenty-seven months) It is now estimated that the entire cost to France of her disastrous campaign with Germany amounted directly or indirectly to $2,080,000,000. That this enormous sum has been successfully shouldered, and the $1,000,000,000 paid over promptly to Germany, shows first, that France is vastly rich; second, that the trade of Europe has attained such a magnitude that figures are ceasing to convey its measure; and, third, that the aggregate commercial actions of nations is a lever which can lift any financial load whatever. The transaction is an admirable piece of international banking, and in the economy of its management should teach a lesson. Another instructive lesson is furnished in the illustration here given of a wealth brought to a country through having the rest of the world as customers. France has no gold mines, iron mines, or other extensive mineral resources such as the United States abounds in, but she draws the money of the world to her to pay for her exquisite fabrics and manufactured products, and thus become enormously wealthy, while the United States in the very height of its wonderful resources, seems to be buying from Europe more than it sells, and a steady drain of money is going across the water to pay the difference.

Remember that gold was never above one and a half per cent. while France was paying her great war debt.

Again, compare the Federal Post Office Department of the United States with that of France. In France there are no Cresswells, no Chorpennings, no Cessnas, no fraudulent mail contracts, no stealings out of the department under the guise of contracts. See the result of the administration of the French Post Office.

The receipts of the French Post Office in 1873 amounted to $22,083,271; the expenses to $14,599,423.40. The letters prepaid numbered 335,794,165 in all against 349,847,632 in 1872, showing a decrease of more than 15,000,000; but on the other hand the number of postal cards, journals, and printed documents of all sorts which passed through the post office in 1870 was 331,875,728, against 272,990,411 in the preceding year, an increase of nearly 60,000,000.

These facts ought to convince any reasonable human being that a reform in the administration of the Government of the United States is absolutely necessary. Let us have a change!—Commonwealth.

Foreign News.

John Mitchel, one of the ablest and most prominent of Irish agitators, died suddenly last week He was convicted of treason many years ago and banished to a penal colony. Escaping from there he came to the United States and during the war was active in behalf of the confederate cause. More recently he returned to Ireland, but the British government did not molest him. Very lately he was elected to Parliament to fill a vacancy, but that body refused to receive him as a member. He was then re-elected by a large majority, but died before the question of his right to a seat again came up. After the fashion of our Radicals, the British Parliament would no doubt have given the seat to his defeated competitor, who had only a few votes, and a violent agitation would no doubt have followed. But "death makes all things even."

The French have again simmered down to comparative quietness. M'Mahon's authority is supreme. The army sustains him, and while it obeys his commands, what other Frenchmen say, or think, or desire, is of no more account than whistling wind.

In Spain, the leading and most distinguished of the Carlist Generals, Cabrera, has abandoned that cause, gone over to King Alfonso, and appeals for peace. Otherwise the relative situation of the hostile parties remains the same.

In Prussia the struggle between Bismark and the Pope for supremacy in ecclesiastical matters continues, with decided advantage to the former so far as legislation is concerned. In England a violent agitation is also continued between Gladstone and the leading Catholic clergy. The Pope occasionally also delivers himself in reference to these struggles of the great leaders and in these he always complains bitterly of the loss of his temporal power.

Two American revivalists are preaching with extraordinary power and success in London. Their meetings are made up of numbers ranging from 15,000 to 25,000. The excitement is on the increase.

The European governments all prohibit the importation of American potatoes, fearing the introduction of the Colorado potato bug.

Excerpts and News Items from Exchanges.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Douglass is doomed. It is understood that he is for Blaine, and against a Third Term, hence he will be called upon to step down and out.

Senator McCreery is said to be the most eloquent Senator now in Washington. The Senator comes from Kentucky, a land where eloquence grows upon the tongue like fruit upon a tree.

The late Congress doubled the postage on matter of the third class. Transient newspapers now require a two cent stamp, instead of the one-cent stamp under the old law. Packages of merchandize, &c., must pay the same increase. It is charged that the Express companies had much to do with the passage of the measure. For increasing the burdens of the people Radical rule is a success.

After the sweeping disasters of last fall, the Republican rejoicing over the election in New Hampshire is very much like a man's losing a large fortune and then going into raptures at finding a cent.

The Philadelphia Republican leaders are divided on the Presidency. Already the shouts are raised: "Horrah for Grant!" "Hurrah for Blaine!" The fight between the "ins" and "outs" promises to be warm.

They are moving for a grand musical demonstration in Washington in 1876. Its real object is to frown the wails of Grant and the Ring legions, when they retire in obedience to the people's Centennial mandate.

TO MAKE ENOUGH MONEY

In the next three months to keep you a year, any unemployed person between the ages of 16 and 60 should take an agency for THE ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY a large, sparkling, literary and family paper, $2.50 a year; pays, instructive, and amusing; half of it pages full of beautiful pictures, the other half containing the choicest reading matter. JAMES PARTON contributing editor. Like that great English paper, the "London Illustrated News," it is highly moral, but entirely unsectarian and non-political. During a year it furnishes over three pictures, and the equal of a large volume to umes of reading matter. IT GIVES AWAY, extra each week, a large engraving, 22 in a year, size 15x24 inches. These are exquisite fac-simile of the finest steel engravings, on heavy tinted paper, with margins suitable for framing, and are truly a fine art gallery every year. Besides each subscriber is presented with the chromo, "Gold Fish, Trout and Flies" size 22x30 inches, in 37 oil colors, painted by Ramsey. Not only the largest and most premium ever given, but the most wonderful in beautiful engravings ever produced. It just the paper for which every body has been waiting—larger and finer than any other, at half the usual cost. Its success is nearly equal to its merits. It is day being received with praise. Complete, so progressive, so full of useful as well as entertaining matter is this paper, that we venture to assert that to every thinking, observant American, a year's subscription (costs $2.50) is, in fact, useful value, worth fifty dollars AGENTS—this combination is unequaled. It is an instantaneous and pronounced success. Every one of American ladies at least will be adding. You are sure to take hold and how. Money return to all of perfectly satisfied, or if the territory you want is already occupied. Address all communications, subscriptions, or orders to E. G. MOORE, Publisher "The Illustrated Weekly," P. O. Box 3330. No. 11 Dey St., N. Y. 4w.

JURUBEBA

ARE YOU

WEAK, NERVOUS, OR DEBILITATED?

Are you so Languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making?

Then try Jurubeba, the wonderful tonic and invigorator, which acts so beneficially on the secretive organs as to impart vigor to all the vital forces.

It is no alcoholic appetizer, which stimulates for a short time, only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and spleen.

It purifies the blood, invigorates the nerves, and gives such a healthy tone to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person.

It regulates the bowels, and is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, but marked results, but gradually his troubles

as if by magic, like the Arabs,

And silently steal away.

This is no new and untried discovery, but has been long used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities, "the most powerful tonic and alterative known."

Ask your druggist for it.

The project to build a bridge across the river at Bloomsburg is again being agitated.

It is reported from the Fishing Creek Valley that the maple sugar crop will be a failure.

The roads have been badly washed in several parts of the county by the recent thaw, and the worst is yet to come.

The Pittston ridges passed away on Tuesday night and on Wednesday a ferry was erected. The fair for a foot passenger was only $1.00.

The Columbia county Grange Convention will meet in Bloomsburg, on Friday, April 2d. There are at present about fifteen granges in the county.

The entertainment at the Normal Hall on Monday evening last was very fairly attended. The students acquitted themselves very creditably.

The snow crust afforded rare facilities to the girls and boys for coasting, with the necessary accompaniment of sundry bruises and bloody noses.

August is to have two moons, they say, which has not occurred for many years. The circumstance is suggestive of various signs, the only reliable one amongst which is that people should pay the printer before that date.

One who says he is a widower without children, and a tradesman with an interest in a farm, writes us that he wants a housekeeper to whom he will pay good wages, provide her with a good home, and "use her like a lady," but desires us not to make a local of it. We can not serve him and altogether regard his request. Our correspondent would probably find it easier to get a wife than any other form of housekeeper, and we suggest that course to him. If any widow or maid desires either position she may inquire at this office for further information.

The Centennial Dramatic Association, recently organized in Bloomsburg, will give an entertainment in the Bloomsburg Opera House, on Friday evening, April 2d, 1875. It consists of T. S. Arthur's popular temperance drama of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," and the laughable farce entitled "The Man Fish." The proceeds to be donated to the poor of this place. The Opera House should be well filled on this occasion. Admission 35, 25 and 15 cents. Tickets for sale at the Book store of Geo. A. Clark. Look out for the programme containing full particulars.

The ground-hog, coon or bear, to whichever the honor may belong, was a success as a prophet on Candlemas day, February 2d. He saw his shadow clearly all day and six weeks of Siberian winter followed. For the weather since the six weeks are up he is not responsible and his prognosis was confined to the six weeks immediately following the date mentioned. He did not intimate that there would be summer weather within six weeks from the 2d of February, but only that it would be nonsense for any man to venture to poke his nose out of the house before the expiration of that time, permitting people to exercise their own discretion after that.

That wise saying about March going out like a lamb if it comes in like a lion, is yet to be fulfilled. So far, lionizing has characterized all the month, the few somewhat mild days being rendered turbulent and destructive by the floods and consequent disaster they produced. Only a few days remain in which to vindicate the wisdom and accuracy of the adage.

THE SUSQUEHANNA AT CATAWISSA.

The long dreaded flood has come, but at a time when least expected. At daybreak the streets were frozen quite hard, and no one entertained the idea that we had crossed the bridge for the last time. Between 7 and 8 o'clock a. m. the announcement was made that the ice had begun to move, and in a short time the whole community flocked to the bridge to witness the awful spectacle which every moment increased in grandeur. A channel was first formed on the left bank while the ice upon the right remained stationery, but it was not long ere the whole body began to move with inconceivable force down the river. At this point the scene beggars description. The roaring and rushing of the waters, the grinding and upheaving of the ice made it a sight as was never witnessed before. The river commenced rising very rapidly, and the ice came with such force and velocity that the ice breaker which covered the second pier was wrenched from its place and shoved against the side of the bridge, as though it was merely an ordinary board. About 9 o'clock a. m. the ice stopped flowing and was piled in high quantities several feet high over the whole width of the river, an ice dam having been formed about a mile below. It remained in this condition until about 12.30 p. m., when the dam below having broken, it again commenced running with greater velocity and force than ever, and it was apparent to all that the bridge must go. The river rose so suddenly that several were obliged to wade through the water in order to effect their escape. At 12.55 p. m. a great noise was heard, caused by the cracking of the timbers, and the second span of the bridge was lifted from the pier and went speeding down the river. One span followed another, and at 2 o'clock p. m. there was nothing left but the last span which is resting upon the ice waiting until the water rises and then the last vestige of the Catawissa bridge will be removed from our sight. This is a loss that can scarcely be estimated. Even if the bridge is rebuilt, which undoubtedly it will be, it will require some time, and the public will suffer great inconvenience for want of it. Many families residing on Water street were obliged to vacate their houses and owing to the rapidity with which the water raised they effected very narrow escapes, the water in several houses being two and three feet deep. At the time of this writing, March 18, 4 p. m., the surroundings present a very desolate appearance. Huge quantities of ice are piled upon either side of the river to the height of several feet. An ice gorge has been formed about two miles below at which place the ice is piled twenty feet high, and in all conceivable positions. Fears are entertained that it may cause a great amount of damage to our town. The Catawissa creek has also contributed its share towards making the damage as great as possible. The water was so high that the paper mill was flooded which necessitated a suspension of their business.

A faint idea may be had of the force and weight of the ice from the fact that large trees, measuring — feet in diameter, growing upon the island, were broken off like reeds. Truly the damage done to Catawissa is very great, and it will require years of labor and thousands of dollars to repair the injury that was done in an hour's time. REPORTER.

George H. Hock, proprietor of the Wapwallopen Valley House, will still continue to preside over that hotel, in place of retiring as has been stated. With additional facilities, he proposes to make his place an excellent resort for summer excursionists. Parties visiting the Council Cup this summer will be afforded first-class accommodations. M.

THE SPRING BREAK-UP.

Fortunate it is, indeed, that the Spring break-up has thus far been so gradual. Only a few days of moderate warmth about two weeks ago, carried off many of the bridges on the North Branch and destroyed much other valuable property. But for the sudden freezing that occurred the destruction would have been terrible. As it was, the bridges at Pittston, Kingston, Nanticoke, Catawissa, Danville and Northumberland were swept away, and those that remain are still in great danger from the melting of the immense body of snow yet remaining and the tremendous ice gorges at Wilkes-Barre and Nanticoke. As yet the melting of the snow is little more than perceptible. In the mountains and northern hill-sides it is as yet scarcely diminished. Now late in March the thaw that is to come will probably be sudden and rapid. The consequences must be most destructive along the streams, large and small.

On the West Branch there has been no thaw of any account, and as that stream did not rise much it is evident that there has as yet been no material melting of snow in the Alleghenies. There are gorges at Milton and west of Lock Haven and every thing wears a threatening attitude. At Williamsport and Lock Haven meetings are held to devise ways and means of guarding the consequences of an unusual flood, and the railroad authorities are prepared to load their bridges with all the cars they can crowd on them freighted with stone.

Along other large streams there is also the gravest apprehension and preparation for the worst. Even along the smaller streams it would be prudent to look to possible consequences and be ready for them.

Whatever may be done to avert danger should be promptly resorted to. Especially should people be prepared to remove promptly and at short warning from dangerous residences. The breaking of gorges may suddenly precipitate vast floods of water and ice upon the line of the rivers and affect points that have heretofore been regarded as safe. Fortunately gorges usually remain until they are melted on, but the water may force them suddenly and disastrously. In any case, prudence and care will be worth the trouble and on the side of safety.

A WRONG CUSTOM CORRECTED.

It is quite generally the custom to take strong liver stimulants for the cure of liver complaint, and both the mineral and vegetable kingdoms have been diligently searched to procure the most drastic and poisonous purgatives, in order to produce a powerful effect upon the liver, and arouse the lagging and enfeebled organ. This system of treatment is on the same principle as that of giving a weak and debilitated man large portions of brandy to enable him to do a certain amount of work. When the stimulant is withheld, the organ, like the system, gradually relapses into a more torpid or sluggish and weakened condition than before. What then is needed? Medicines, which while they restore to life the blood from the liver as that organ is toned into action, will not overwork and thus debilitate it, but will, when their work is thus accomplished, leave the liver in a healthy and healthful condition. Such remedies are found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets.

A CURE OF LIVER DISEASE

Rusk, Texas, May 10, 1873.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My wife last year at this time was confined to her bed with chronic liver disease. I had one of the best doctors to see her and he gave her up to die, when I came upon some of your pamphlets. I bought one bottle and commenced giving it, she then weighed 82 pounds, now she weighs 120 pounds and is robust and hearty. She has taken eight bottles in all, so you see I am an advocate for your medicines. WILLIAM MEGEL.

FROM THE NOTED SCOUT, "BUFFALO BILL."

Rollins House, Rockford, Ill., April 26, 1874.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:—Sir—I have now taken four bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery in connection with your —— pills, and must say that nothing I have ever taken for my liver and blood was so much good. I feel like a new man. Thanks to your wonderful medicine.

W. F. CODY, ("BUFFALO BILL")

E. P. KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON.

This truly valuable tonic has been so thoroughly tested by all classes of the community that it is now deemed indispensable as a tonic medicine. It costs but a little, purifies the blood and gives tone to the stomach, regulates the system and promotes life, everybody should use it.

For the cure of weak stomachs, general debility, indigestion, diseases of the stomach and for all cases requiring a tonic.

This wine includes the most agreeable and efficient salt of iron we possess—Citrate of Magnesia Oxide, combined with the most energetic of vegetable tonics—Yellow Peruvian Bark.

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want or get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want to build up a constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?
If you do try KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON. I only ask a trial of this valuable tonic!

Beware of counterfeits, as Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is the only sure and effectual remedy in the known world for the permanent cure of Dyspepsia and Debility, and as there are a number of imitations offered to the public, I would caution the community to purchase none but the genuine article, manufactured by E. P. Kunkel, and having his stamp on the cork of every bottle. The very fact that others are attempting to imitate this valuable remedy proves its worth and speaks volumes in its favor. Get the genuine.

Sold only in $1 bottles. Sold by Druggists and dealers everywhere.

999 TAPE WORM REMOVED ALIVE. 999

Head and all complete in two hours. No fee till head passes. Send for Circular. Tape and Stomach Worms removed by Dr. KUNKEL, 859 North Third St., Philadelphia. Send for circular or ask your druggist for a bottle of Kunkel's Worm Syrup. It never fails. Price $1.

A ROYAL ORGAN.

The stomach has been well named a "regal organ," since it aways and controls the entire system, every gland, tissue and nerve sympathizing with it as the servants of a prime sympathize with their master. Each one of them is fed and sustained by it—even the brain itself, the centre of sensation, is absolutely dependent upon it for sustenance. Consequently, when the stomach fails to perform its all-important office, the subordinate organs also falter in their duty. The reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have such a wondrously beneficial effect upon the general health and are such a reliable preventative of disease, is that they speedily overcome weakness or disorders of the stomach, and thus insure complete nourishment of the entire system and a healthful performance of its various functions. Unlike those stimulants whose alcoholic principle is unmodified by judicious medication, the spirituous basis of these bitters, which is of the purest description holds in solution herbal alteratives and invigorants to which a foremost rank has been assigned in materia medica. But it is not alone the fact that these sovereign botanic elements enter into the composition of the bitters that constitutes them such a benign tonic and corrective, but also that they are so happily combined that the full effect of each is exerted upon the disordered or debilitated system. The digestive and secretive organs are the first to experience their beneficial operation, which extends by sympathy to the brain, the nerves and the circulation. The influence thus exerted is fruitful of those great sanitary results which have built up the reputation of this truly national medicine.

—o—

If a man wants a bottle of whiskey, let him buy it and take it home like a man, and not sneak home with a bottle of "Bitters" or "Cordial," and pretend that it is medicine. If he wants a tonic that is something better than a temporary stimulant, he should get a bottle of Peruvian Syrup, (an Iron Tonic) that will vitalize the blood and give durable strength to the system.

THE BEST PRINTING OFFICE.

This present is a good opportunity to remind the friends of the paper, and the public generally, that the COLUMBIAN Job PRINTING OFFICE has no superior in this section, and, in some respects, is without an equal. During the last year we have completely renewed our types and made large additions, and it is no idle boast to say that we have now the best presses, the best Assortment of Type, the best Stock of Paper, Cards, &c., and the best Workmen in the county. Our workmen are specially adapted for the fit places, and we make it a point to always give our customers a neat, correct and satisfactory job. We do not claim to do work for less than others, but will warrant it to be as cheap as can be done consistent with style and good work. All who want good job printing of any kind or every variety of Card Paper, Ink, Envelopes, Tags, &c., that is handy to be called for, and can furnish any quantity or style of work on short notice. Binding to order. tf

—o—

WHERE TO ADVERTISE.

A. T. Stewart says the best advertising medium he has ever found were the old established organs of the two political parties, at the several county seats throughout the Union. "These," he says "reach every family of the least account in their several counties, and are more carefully read than any other class of journals." If Mr. Stewart's judgment is of value, there is no difficulty in deciding which paper it is for the interest of business men to advertise in. The COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, upon which this paper is partially founded, was established in 1836, and the COLUMBIAN now enjoys a wider circulation and greater prosperity than it ever did. It goes regularly into two thousand families in Columbia and adjoining counties, and by most of them is read from the first to the last line. It is the only recognized exponent of near five thousand Democratic voters in the county. It gives advertisements a tasty display, that makes them attractive to its patrons, thus ensuring greater certainty that they will peruse them. While its circulation is undoubtedly much the largest in the county, the advertising rates of the COLUMBIAN are no higher than those of other papers with barely half and several not one-fourth the number of subscribers. Facts like these speak for themselves. No shrewd business man will neglect to insert his advertisement in the COLUMBIAN. tf

—o—

MODERN WOMEN.

It is a sad commentary upon our boasted civilization that the women of our times have degenerated in health and physique until they are literally a race of invalids—pale, feeble and back-achy, with only here and there a few noble exceptions in the persons of the robust, buxom ladies characteristic of the past in days gone by. By a very large experience in curing a period of years and endorsing the treatment of many thousands of cases of these ailments peculiar to women, Dr. Pierce, of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., has perfected, by the combination of certain vegetable extracts, a natural specific, which he does not extol as a cure-all, but one which admirably fulfills a specific end or purpose, being a most positive and reliable remedy for those weaknesses and complaints that afflict the women of the present day. This natural specific compound is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The following are among those diseases in which this wonderful medicine has worked cures as if by magic and which it will never be known to have failed in curing, viz.: Weak back, sore toes and general debility, acute and chronic displacements of internal organs, resulting from debility and lack of strength in natural supports, bearing-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, hysteria, spinal irritation and kindred symptoms, many other forms of diseases incident to women, and proper to mention here, in which, as well as in the cases that have been enumerated, the Favorite Prescription effects cures—the marvel of the world. It will not do harm in any shape or condition of the system, and by adopting its use the invalid lady may avoid that severest of ordeals—the confining of a family physician. Favorite Prescription is sold by dealers in medicine generally.

The New License Law.

The following is a copy of the license bill as reported by the conference committees of the Senate and House and adopted by both branches of the Legislature:

An act to repeal an act to permit the voters of this commonwealth to vote every three years on the question of granting licenses to sell intoxicating liquors and to restrain and regulate the sale of the same.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the act approved the 27th day of March, A. D. 1872, entitled an act to permit the voters of this commonwealth to vote every three years on the question of granting licenses to sell intoxicating liquors be and the same is hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. That licenses for sales of liquors, where not otherwise provided for by special law, may be granted by the court of quarter sessions of the proper county at the first or second session in each year, and shall be for one year. The said court shall fix by rule or standing order a time at which application for said licenses shall be heard, at which time all persons applying, or making objections to applications for licenses, may be heard by evidence, petition, remonstrance or counsel: Provided that for the present year licenses as aforesaid may be granted at the third, or any earlier session of said court

SEC. 3. That all hotels, inns and taverns shall be classified and rated according to the last annual return of the mercantile appraiser or assessor of the proper city or county, as follows, to wit: All cases where the classification shall be $10,000 or more, shall constitute the first class and pay $700; where the classification shall be $8,000 and not more than $10,000 the second class shall pay $400; where the classification shall be $6,000 and not more than $8,000 the third class and shall pay $200; where the classification shall be $4,000 and not more than $6,000 the fourth shall pay $100; where the classification shall be less than $4,000 the fifth class and shall pay $50: Provided, That no license shall be less than $50: And provided further, That any person licensed the present or any portion of a year shall pay a pro rata share of the license fee and the authority granting the license shall designate the classification for that year. And provided further, that no license for bottlers shall be less than $50.

SEC. 4. That any sale made of vinous, spiritous, malt or brewed liquors, or admixture thereof, contrary to the provisions of this law, shall be taken to be a misdemeanor, and upon conviction of the offense in the court of quarter sessions of the peace of any city or county, the person so offending shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $500, with the costs of prosecution, and to stand convicted until the sentence of the court is complied with, not exceeding ninety days, and upon a second or any subsequent conviction the party so offending shall pay a fine not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 and undergo imprisonment in the county jail of not less than three months nor more than one year, and if licensed shall in lieu of imprisonment forfeit his bond and said license and be incapacitated from receiving any license aforesaid for the period of five years thereafter, and any drug or apothecary store, confectionery or mineral, or other fountain, who shall sell any spiritous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors, mixed or pure, to be used as a beverage, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to the same conviction and punishment as unlicensed offenders.

SEC. 5. That it shall be the duty of the court, mayor, alderman or justice of the peace, before whom any fine or penalty shall be recovered, to award said fine or penalties, as well as proceeds of all forfeited bonds to the city or county treasurer, as the case may be.

SEC. 6. That the constables of the respective wards, boroughs and townships shall make a return of retailers of liquors, and in addition thereto it shall be the duty of every such constable at each term of said court of their respective counties to make return on oath or affirmation whether within his knowledge there is any unlicensed place within his bailiwick kept and maintained in violation of this act, and it shall be the especial duty of the judges of all of said courts to see that this return is faithfully made, and if any person shall make known in writing, with his or her name subscribed thereto, to such constable, the name or names of any one who shall have violated this act, with the names of the witnesses who can prove the fact, it shall be his duty to make return thereof on oath or affirmation to the court, be deemed guilty of the crime of perjury, and upon his willful failure to do so he shall and upon indictment and conviction shall be subjected to its penalties.

SEC. 7. The husband, wife, parent, child, guardian or any person who has or may hereafter have the habit of drinking intoxicating liquor to excess may give notice in writing signed by him or her to any person not to sell or deliver intoxicating liquor to the person having such habit, if the person so notified at any time within twelve months after such notice, sells or delivers any such liquor to the person having such habit, the person giving the notice may in an action of tort recover of the person notified any sum of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, as may be assessed by the court or judge as damages. A married woman may bring such action in her own name notwithstanding her coverture and all damages recovered by her shall go to her separate use. In case of the death of either party the action and the right of action given by this section shall survive to or against his executor or administrator without limit as to damages.

SEC. 8. No person or persons non-residents of this commonwealth shall engage in selling, trading or vending intoxicating liquor and no hawker, peddler or traveling agent shall engage in selling for any person or persons who are non-residents, or in vending, trading or contrafficking in any manner, whatsoever in intoxicating liquors within the limits of this commonwealth.

SEC 9. Any bond given by any person under the provisions of this act may be canceled after thirty days' notice in writing shall have been given and received by the respective parties thereto: Provided, The sureties to be released from such, or any bond, shall bear no risk pending thereon. In the event of canceling any bond and the releasing of the sureties the principal shall provide acceptable substitutes if he desires to continue the business, otherwise his license shall immediately be revoked.

SEC. 10. That no license to sell intoxicating drinks shall hereafter be granted to any person until he shall have executed a bond to the commonwealth in the penal sum of $2,000, with two sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court granting such license, conditioned to pay all damages, which may be recovered in any action which may be instituted against him under the provisions of this act and all costs, fines and penalties which may be imposed upon him in any indictment for violating this act or any other law of this commonwealth relating to selling or furnishing intoxicating drinks, and the said bond shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the said court for the use and benefit of all persons interested therein.

SEC. 11. That it shall not be lawful for any person, with or without license, to sell to any person any intoxicating drink on any day on which elections are now or hereafter may be required to be held, nor on Sunday, nor at any time to a minor or to a person visibly affected by intoxicating drinks.

SEC 12. That any license heretofore granted shall not be invalidated, and that none of the provisions of this act shall be held to authorize the manufacture or sale of any intoxicating liquors in any city, county, borough or township having special prohibitory laws.

A candidate for county clerk in Texas offered to register marriages for nothing. His opponent, undismayed, promised to do the same, and throw a candle in.

A young lady, intending to paint her cheek with rouge, put all the paint on her nose, and did not discover her error until requested to sign "the pledge?"

A western editor having waited in vain for the coming of the Russian Mennonites, "Where are the Mennonites?" and echo in the shape of his wife repeated the question thus: "Where are all you men o' nights?"

A gentleman taking furnished apartments told the landlady, "I assure you, ma'am, I never left a lodging but my landlady shed tears," she answered, "I hope it was not, sir, because you went away without paying."

A Reading bride recently made a wedding trip all by herself—the husband could not get away from his business, and claiming that according to time honored usage she was entitled to the trip, she went it alone.

An angry teacher was whipping a pupil, and having prolonged the exercise far beyond the bounds of moderation, the boy looked up, and calmly said, "Come, sir, you must be tired, let's take a rest;" and he wrested the whip from the teacher's hand.

A youngster, while warming his hands over the kitchen fire, was remonstrated with by his father, who said, "Go 'way from the stove; the weather is not cold." The little fellow, looking up at his stern parent demurely replied, "I ain't heating the weather; I'm warming my hands."

"Did you report that I was a thief, sir?" angrily inquired Snook the other day of one of his neighbors. "No, I reported no such thing. I only said that there were strong suspicions against you, and that I believed all the suspicions to be correct." "Oh, was that all?"

One of the boys, the other day, sent a young lady friend of his a cake of Lubin's finest variety of toilette soap, with the request that she would draw no inference on receiving such a gift. The next day the young man was somewhat astonished when he received a letter from the young lady containing the present of a fine-tooth comb, with the request that he would draw no inferences therefrom.

"He died very suddenly," said one female to another at the Post Office window in Detroit.

"And did he have his life insured?" asked the other.

"Yes—three thousand dollars."

"Oh, well, then, it isn't so bad. His wife can have a choral set, some new furs, a silk dress, and enough mourning stuff to git up and wave!"

A Boston wag once wrote to President Lincoln, asking whether he would accept a carriage and horses as a token of esteem from the Young Men's Christian Association of that city. In due time an affirmative answer was returned from Washington. The wag thereupon sat down and wrote back: "I thought so." It is needless to add that the carriage and horses were never sent.—*N. Y. England's marriage statistics have been analyzed to show the probabilities of marriage for women at different ages. Supposing the sum of a woman's chances of marriage to be 100, she exhausts, between the ages of 15 and 20 years, fourteen and a half chances. If she lives unmarried from 20 to 25, fifty-two more of her chances have vanished into thin air. If she remains unmarried for five more years, she will turn 30 with only fifteen and a half chances out of her hundred left. After 35 she has eleven and a half chances, and at this point the statistician gave up his calculation, except that he assures us that even if a woman has lived unmarried sixty years, she still has the tenth of a chance of getting married out of the hundred with which she is supposed to have started life.

VEGETINE

Strikes at the root of disease by purifying the blood restoring the liver and kidneys to healthy action, invigorating the nervous system.

VEGETINE

Is not a vile, nauseous compound, which simply purges the bowels, but a safe, pleasant remedy which is sure to purify the blood, and thereby restore the health.

VEGETINE

Is now prescribed in cases of scrofula and other diseases of the blood, by many of the best physicians, owing to its great success in curing all diseases of this nature.

VEGETINE

Does not deceive invalids into false hopes by purging and creating a factitious appetite, but assists nature in clearing and purifying the whole system, leading the patient gradually to perfect health.

VEGETINE

Was looked upon as an experiment for some time by some of our best physicians, but in no most incredulous in regard to its merit are now its most ardent friends and supporters.

VEGETINE

Instead of being a puffed-up medicine has worked its way up to its astonishing present success by actual merit in curing all diseases of the blood, of whatever nature.

VEGETINE

Says a Boston physician, "has no equal as a blood purifier. Hearing of its many wonderful cures after all other remedies had failed, I visited the laboratory and convinced myself of its genuine merit. It is prepared from barks, roots and herbs, each of which is highly effective, and they are compounded in such a manner as to produce astonishing results."

VEGETINE

Is acknowledged and recommended by physicians and apothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood ever discovered, and thousands speak in its praise who have been restored to health.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

BOSTON, Feb. 13, 181.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility, VEGETINE was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefitted by its use. I procured the article and after using several bottles, was restored to health and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health. Respectfully yours,

C. L. PETTINGILL,
Firm of S. M. Pettengill & Co., 10 State st., Boston.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—The two bottles of VEGETINE furnished me by your agent, my wife has used with great benefit.

For a long time she has been troubled with dizziness and costi cness; these troubles are now entirely removed by the use of VEGETINE.

She was also troubled with Dyspepsia and general debility; and has been greatly benefitted.

FEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

NATICK, MASS., June 1st, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—Through the advice and earnest persuasion of Rev. E. S. Best, of this place, I have been taking VEGETINE for dyspepsia of which I have suffered for years.

I have not only two bottles and already feel myself a new man. Respectfully,

Dr. J. W. CARTER.

Report from a Practical Chemist and Apothecary.

BOSTON, Jan. 1, 1874.

Dear Sir—This to certify that I have sold at retail 15½ dozen (186 bottles) of your VEGETINE since April 19, 1870, and can truly say that it has given the best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended, that I ever sold. Scarcely a day passes without some of my customers testify to its merits on themselves or their friends. I am perfectly cognizant of several cases of scrofulous tumors being cured by VEGETINE alone in this vicinity. Very respectfully yours,

A. I. GILMAN, 468, Broadway.
